Alison Lee Freeman is a 21st century chantey singer with an extraordinary voice easily heard over gale force winds. In performance the vivacious balladeer sings a cappella or accompanies herself on guitar. She mixes traditional songs of the sea with newly renovated folk songs and original material. Join in on the chorus for a journey back in time and enjoy history the old fashioned way through entertaining songs and stories.

Her song, "Alison's Saab Story", which has been played on NPR's Car Talk, chronicles her history with cars and is set to a traditional sea chantey melody. "Alison's SAAB Story" received Honorable Mention in the Folk category of the Songwriters' Association of Washington Mid-Atlantic Song Contest 2003.

Freeman performs regularly in Maine, Massachusetts, and Newfoundland at a variety of diverse venues such as The Maine Maritime Museum, festivals, coffeehouses, restaurants, clubs, and assisted living facilities. She holds a Bachelor of Music in voice performance from Boston University.

Alison Lee Freeman has recordings available for purchase in Bath at Lisa-Marie's Made in Maine, The Maine Maritime Museum, and online at CDBaby.com, and most digital music services such as Apple iTunes or MSN Music.

I heard your song, "Alison's Saab Story," on Car Talk.

"What a song!" I said. "What a voice!" - Brian Daley

Alison Lee Freeman takes the stage without question, then engages her audience with a powerful, beautiful voice and passion she holds for her sea chanties and original songs. Alison presents a performance that is robust, educational and -- most importantly -- ENTERTAINING!

- Martin Swinger

Her warm and engaging stage presence, great voice, great material, and her genuine enthusiasm for traditional songs was a highlight of the festival and a real treat for our weekly folk club. - Caroline Clarke, Member of Board, St. John's Folk Arts Council Newfoundland, Canada

Great voice. Felt I was right there along the ocean singing songs! - Meq Brown & Margaret Farrell

What a memorable evening-especially the sea shanties

- Anne MacAskill

You have all the right moves as a performer. Keep up that good music!

- Bill Kehoe

You have an awesome stage personality. Loved "Sushi is Nice"

I am writing to offer you a recommendation for Alison Freeman as both a performer and a host. Alison was the emcee for an open mic at my store for more than a year. During that year she entertained people who came in, including musicians and non-musicians, adults and children. She had the job of keeping the evening moving along, filling in the gaps when performers were not ready to take the stage. She did a wonderful job of involving the audience when appropriate and making her show fit the age of the people attending.

She was reliable and friendly, and sang a variety of pieces that showed off her talent as a songwriter, a singer, and a general entertainer. We were sorry when she left Maine and could no longer be our regular host, as well as regular entertainer. We would love to have her back. Anytime

Her singing, as the museum chanty(wo)man has been of particular service to us and delight to me personally. She handles this aspect of the job here with the verve and boldness expected of a traditional ship's chantyman and additionally handled the fatigue and need to remain open and eager to thousands of visitors simultaneously. Her professional work in song has added a wonderful dimension to our offer to the museum public.
